Good afternoon,

I am writing this letter so I can give credit where credit is due. So many times consumers are so eager to communicate a bad experience but cannot fathom a quick word to compliment or give an accolade to someone who deserves it.

This communication is centered around Jack Bushart. I had the pleasure of meeting Jack back in the winter of 2023 when I was in the market for a larger building. I feel I am a good judge of character and Jack has just that. You can be knowledgeable about real estate, leases, landlords, etc., but if you're narcissistic, condescending, or lack character I will not deal with you. Jack truly epitomizes what a Sales Associate should be. He genuinely cared about my needs, he didn't run the used car sales pitch, heck, we sat down at lunch and barely discussed the building options. We discussed likes, dislikes, hobbies, etc.

Look, I'm writing this letter because this young man has a good heart which translates into his work, any potential customer can tell he's in it to really make them happy. To Jack you're not just a commission, you're a possible friend. I don't know who's hands this letter will fall into but I can say I respect you because of the decision you made to bring aboard Jack.

I can say without a sliver of doubt that I would recommend Burger and Company to anyone in the market for industrial real estate. I've enclosed my contact info for reference, thanks for the attention to this letter.
